Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from An Impartial Account of the Life of the Rev. John N. Maffitt: With a Narrative of the Difficulties Attending His First Marriage Some years afterwards, his wife and children followed him to the New World; but whether of their own accord, allured by the report of his success, or at his solicitation, the author is not prepared to specify. His career at the time of their arrival tended southwards. A transient reconciliation, as usual in similar cases, led to more bitter feelings, and a final severance for ever. He kept on his splendid way, moving in affluence, and cheered by idolatrous flatteries, while she and her children found an humble home in New Orleans, and ultimately in Galveston. In this new home Mrs. Maffit displayed unconquerable energy. Through her own unassisted exertions, her small private boarding-house grew rapidly into a fashionable hotel. Her son was provided for by an honorable post in the naval service. Her two daughters were educated in the polite accomplishments common to the higher classes. They were, indeed, both of exceeding beauty, possessed much of their fathers innate poetry of soul, and finally married wealthy and respectable men, in the sunny land of their adoption; the one finding an excellent husband in Judge Johnson of Brazoria, the other in a Captain of the United States Navy. It has been asserted by his enemies, that Maffit justified the separation from his first wife by circulating reports injurious to her reputation; that he strove to hunt her down by calumnies and ceaseless persecution. This is all a naked assertion. Not one particle of proof to that effect has ever yet been offered to...
