Not illustrated. 1910 Excerpt: . most constant forms of bird-life during the late fall and winter months were the Junco, Goldfinch and Song Sparrows while in the spring and summer the Meadowlarks, Field and Vesper Sparrows, Goldfinch and Indigo Bunting were almost always to be found in varying numbers. The only place where the Snowflake has ever been noted within the Glen region was on the eastern end of this part of the plateau. Forest Hill Cemetery with its mixed growth of coniferous and deciduous trees presented features particularly attractive to birds of arboreal habits, and for this reason a greater number of species were found congregating here than in any other part of the entire district. Warblers, Thrushes and Flycatchers were found to be especially abundant during the migrations, and in fact the Cemetery is one of the best fields in the environs of Ann Arbor for the student of Warblers. The proximity of the Huron river accounts in a measure for the presence here of such species as the Blackcrowned Night Heron, Mourning Warbler, and others of similar habits, that have been found here. SEASONAL AND ANNOTATED LISTS OF SPECIES. In endeavoring to compile the data, on individual species of birds noted within the confines of the Glen region it was found that this could best be done by first arranging the more common and characteristic forms in groups according to the season of their occurrence as follows: Permanent Residents, Winter Residents and Visitants, Summer Residents and...
