Ausable Press. Paperback / softback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Salt Water Amnesia, Jeffrey Skinner, Jeffrey Skinner's poems come at the world from many different directions. Some are outrageous and very funny, like "Experiment," which begins, "I sewed my father into a specially designed, handmade bear suit. He was indistinguishable from a real bear, and yet retained the necessary functions of a human. I also provided a G.P.S. radio collar. Then I air-dropped him into a densely forested preserve. When I returned a year later I found he had mated with an Asian black bear. He and she and their two cubs lived a quiet life in a mountain cave." In other poems, Skinner explores more familiar domestic landscapes, taking us with great tenderness and precision into the life of the human heart. By turns poignant, brainy, and hilarious, "Salt Water Amnesia" is a book that will surprise and delight. "Reading the Bay" "A calm water morning. After what was said on both sides." Don't you talk to me that way. "My daughter." "We cannot speak, now, nor stand to touch." "The bay, covered with tiny script Moving rapidly right to left. Words Crossing over One another, whole passages Torn from an asylum diary. I lifted her" "Body, a huge flailing penknife, into the car." "A seagull sits bobbing on the text. My brother. It appears that, today at least, all language moves out to sea." Jeffrey Skinner has published four collections of poetry: "Late Stars," "A Guide to Forgetting," "The Company of Heaven," and "Gender Studies." His work has received wide recognition, including fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Ingram Merrill Foundation, and the Howard Foundation. Currently director of the creative writing program at the University of Louisville, he is also co-founder and editorial consultant for...
