Excerpt: . conjunction with the inflammation, bacteriologists have discovered a coccus known as the Diplococcus Fraenkel, and named for the scientist who first separated and classified the germ. This organism, also, is always found in the lungs in acute pneumonia, and there seems to be a close relation between the two disease symptoms, at least in some of their forms. When first attacked, the signs are nausea, headache at the base of the brain, and fever that may at once leap to 104 or 105 degrees. The pulse is variable but more often slow. In the so-called epidemic form a skin eruption is one of the features. The progress of the conditions is rapid, and in acute cases from three to five days mark its limit. Even in the earlier stages there is delirium, and in the later ones coma ending in death occurs. Medical...
